Specialist care support describes more intensive assistance for health, rehabilitation and psychological needs, from long-term conditions, deteriorating health, acquired injuries and neurological conditions to learning disabilities support.

Understanding Complex and Specialist Care Needs

Elite Care Scotland provides specialist nursing support as part of our clients' daily routines, including stoma care, complex bowel management, gastronomy/PEG feeding, suctioning, tracheostomy care and home oxygen therapy.

We support individuals who have challenging behaviours, and specific needs to help them adopt coping mechanisms in their daily life.

Caring for Children and Young Adults with Complex, or Challenging, Needs

Elite Care Scotland supports and cares for children and young people across a range of physical, mental health and medical conditions, some of which can be complex, terminal and life-limiting.

Our services range from supporting a young person to move into independent living accommodation, providing respite care for a child with a disability and their family, to providing palliative care for a child with a terminal illness.

Our support and care plans are overseen by our Lead Nurse for Paediatric Services and are shared with GPs, community health teams, the Local Authority, education establishments, and employer, if applicable.

We provide peace of mind for our younger clients and their families, and a seamless continuity of support from child to young adult to adult.

Our learning disability support programmes have 4 aims:

A full and happy life close to home

A choice about the type of support received

Assist with home choices and location

Active social and leisure activities, including learning new skills and hobbies

Case Management and Complex Care

Elite Care Scotland has extensive experience of providing complex care and support for clients with authorised representatives, including Case Managers, Solicitors and Personal Injury lawyers.

We work closely with our client's case management team to ensure compliance with Care Plans, provision of care and support professionals, and adherence to agreed budgets.

Our Complex Care Package Costs

Elite Care Scotland's services are privately-funded, either by our client, or their representatives direct, or supported by a Local Authority or CCG.

The cost of the care and support is based upon a comprehensive Care Assessment which is shared and discussed with our client, their family, and authorised professionals who are concerned and interested in their welfare.

The Care Assessment will inform the nursing and care team services our client requires, and the health outcomes we want to help our client achieve.

Our client, their family and authorised representatives are fully informed at all times of how the cost of their care and support is determined and utilised.
